Spies Who Can't Spy

PRESIDENT Kennedy takes all the blame for Cuba. He should be much because the amount they ask is the responsible executive. The amount they get is kept secret for security reasons. Eisenhower administration dreamed up the invasion plan which failed.

Mr. Kennedy declined to veto it. But we see no point in continuing to pay spies who can't spy, planners who can't plan and cloak and dagger types whose most chilling accomplishment may have been the downing of an entire pitcherful of martinis at a single cocktail party. Meanwhile, though, let the probe of the Central Intelligence Agency's amateurishness in the invasion be thoroughly investigated. These people get a lot of money to run their
